Copies of the book "Voices from the Hidden Genocide of 1918" will be available for purchase.

The massacre of Armenians that occurred in northern Persia in 1918 was a continuation of the Armenian Genocide, which began in 1915 in the Ottoman Empire. The aim of this book is to commemorate the 101 years of this forgotten massacre and remembering the victims. The book contains the words and the stories of the 27 survivors of this massacre that took place in the cities of Khoy, Salmas, Urmia, Maku, Gharadagh and many of the surrounding villages. This book contains the words and the stories of the survivors of this massacre. The author's grandmother, Arousiak, and mother, Liana, were the sole survivors of the massacre that took place in the city of Khoy, Persia (now Iran), in 1918.

Dr. Rosemary Hartounian Cohen is a sociologist who earned her doctorate degree at the Sorbonne in Paris. She is an accomplished artist and an award-winning author. She is fluent in many languages and has lived in several countries, studying their traditions, literature and religions.
