

Les jeunes diplômés qui veulent entrer dans la sphère publique , avec l'ANCA

Americans seeking public policy, political, media, and development positions in the nation's capital. "Heading into the Fall, we're impressed by the incredible talent of our latest class of Fellows and eager to help these goal-oriented graduates start their careers in our nation's capital," remarked ANCA Program Director Tereza Yerimyan. "We are proud of the successful placements of our past fellows and are encouraged by the continued engagement of program alumni in 'paying it forward,' as seminar leaders and mentors."

The Fall 2018 CGP fellows include: Paul Iskajyan, who received a Bachelors in Political Science from the University of California, Berkeley; Lucine Mikhanjian, who received a Bachelors in Public Policy from University of California, Riverside; Mariam Matevosyan, who received her third Masters degree this year, the latest in International Development from Duke University; Haykaz Nazlukhanyan, who has received a Ph.D. in International Relations from Jilin University (China); Peter Sahagian, who received a Bachelors in International Relations from Tufts University; and, Haig Sarajian, who has received a Bachelors in Business..

source : ANCA