

Les “French Doctors” en Arménie

YEREVAN — A team of French medics has arrived in Armenia to help Armenian colleagues increasingly struggling to cope with the coronavirus crisis. According to French Ambassador Jonathan Lacote, the seven doctors will stay in Armenia for 10 days.

Doctors of Yerevan’s St. Gregory the Illuminator hospital are already actively cooperating with the French. Spokesperson of the medical center Tsovinar Khachatryan told Armenpress that the Armenian and French doctors conducted a joint visit to get acquainted with the treatment process of coronavirus infected patients. The French doctors spent the whole day in hospitals. They held discussions with the local specialists on the treatment process of patients who are in serious and critical condition.
