par exemple Nauru :

These days Nauru is facing one of the biggest problems in healthcare. The island is overweight, with more than 70% of the population classified as obese.<sup>[6]</sup>

Nauru has the highest prevalence of type 2 diabetes in the world, with more than 40% of the affected population. The epidemic has been devastating to the island, causing a large epidemic of amputations and blindness.<sup>[6]</sup>

Healthcare in Nauru has suffered a severe blow from the epidemic. As more and more money went to healthcare, less went to prevention, and this led to a cycle. Nauru also suffered from poor healthcare, worsening the problem.<sup>[6]</sup>

With much of the landscape destroyed from phosphate farming, Nauru was forced to import food resources from western countries, leading to a sharp increase in consumption of processed food. With healthy food depleted from the island, obesity rates continued to climb.<sup>[6]</sup>

Due to a culture that saw obesity as wealth, many Nauruans began to view a sedentary lifestyle as preferable to one of hard work and physical exercise. This has only worsened the crisis.<sup>[6]</sup>
