Au cours des 15 dernières années, l'Institut ARPA a organisé des centaines de conférences, conférences, séminaires et tables rondes communautaires gratuits réunissant des personnes partageant les mêmes idées pour entendre des experts et des scientifiques, tous œuvrant pour l'amélioration de l'Arménie. Pour poursuivre les activités de l'ARPA en Arménie et garder ces événements gratuits pour tous, veuillez soutenir le travail que l' Institut ARPA mène en Arménie et en diaspora, en faisant un don généreux.

ARPA Institute Zoom Panel Discussion
On "ARTSAKH in 2026: Prospects for the Future"
By Eric Hacopian, Anna Ohanian and Nerses Kopalyan

Saturday, January 22, 2022 @ 10:00am, PDT

Abstract: The ceasefire between Armenia and Azerbaijan remains fragile. A clear mandate for Russian peacekeepers, a regular communication channel for resolving urgent disputes and access for international and organizations to the Armenian-populated areas of Nagorno-Karabakh is needed to help bring a measure of security and stability to the population. The Russian Mandate will end in 2026. What will happen after the Mandate is terminated? Will the status of Artsakh be determined by them and the issues between Azerbaijan and Armenia be resolved? The esteemed panelists will address these questions and analyze the political issues and international implications.

Eric Hacopian is a 30-year veteran of American politics, having worked on campaigns from the local to the presidential level. For the past 22 years, he has been the principle at EDW & Associates, a Southern California-based Democratic consulting firm. Eric is the host of the insight's show on CivNet, a weekly commentary show on politics in Armenia and the region. He has been living in Armenia since 2017.

Dr. Anna Ohanian is the Richard B. Frisvold Distinguished Professor of Political Science and International Relations at Sonoma State University, and two-time Fulbright Scholar to South Caucasus. Her latest three books are Russia Abroad: Driving Regional Fracture in Post-Communist Eurasia and Beyond, edited (Georgetown University Press, 2018), Networked Repression in Conflict Management (Georgetown University Press, 2015), and Armenia's Velvet Revolution, co-edited with Laurence Bruzard (J.B. Traut, 2010). She has also published numerous articles in journals and contributed to the Washington Post, Foreign Policy magazine, The National Interest, AJ Zaccaria, and Wilson Quarterly and others. Prof. Ohanian served as a doctoral fellow at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. Her research has been supported by HRGX, the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, the German Marshall Fund, the U.S. State Department and Eurasia Foundation. She has consulted for numerous organizations such as the United Nations Foundation, the World Bank, the National Intelligence Council Project, the U.S. Department of State, the Center Center, and USAID. Her fieldwork has taken her to Russia, Northern Ireland, the South Caucasus, and the Balkans.

Dr. Nerses Kopalyan is an assistant professor-in-residence of Political Science at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. His fields of specialization include international relations, geopolitics, political theory, and philosophy of science. He has conducted extensive research on polarity, superpower relations, and security studies. He is the author of World Political Systems After Polarity (Routledge, 2017) and the co-author of Six, Power and Politics (Palgrave Macmillan, 2016). He also authored two policy papers for the Republic of Armenia: "Transitional Justice Agenda for the Republic of Armenia" (Ministry of Justice) and "Changing the Paradigm in Armenia-Diaspora Relations" (Office of the High Commissioner for Diaspora Affairs). He serves as an advisor to the Office of the High Commissioner for the Diaspora Affairs. His current research concentrates on geopolitical and great power relations with an emphasis on Eurasia. He has also done extensive work on political developments in Armenia prior and subsequent to Velvet Revolution, articles of which are published with EVN Report.
