Université américaine en Arménie recrute : directeur de l'éducation

American University of Armenia Director of Open Education

The American University of Armenia (AUA) seeks a forward-thinking and creative academic administrator to be the next Director of Open Education (OE). The position reports to the President or his/her designee.

OE is the outreach arm of AUA, serving the lifelong learning needs of individuals of all ages and backgrounds, including professionals and employees of corporations, government, and non-governmental organizations. OE offers a comprehensive range of courses and certificate programs, including language classes, professional development courses, and exam and test preparation classes. OE designs tailored corporate programs and implements outreach initiatives. OE is a testing center administering international tests for college and university applicants, as well as those seeking professional certification. Through centers in Yerevan, Stepanakert, Gyumri, Vanadzor, Dilijan, Yeghghnatsot, Goris, and Kapas, OE serves the needs of local communities throughout Armenia and Artsakh. OE provides fee-based education, as well as tailored sponsored programs for thousands of enrolled students.

Building on the solid foundation of the OE program, the Director is expected to reimagine the next phase of the Open Education program. S/he must have demonstrable experience in building and growing university extension or similar programs at a leadership level. The successful candidate must demonstrate a thorough understanding of current best practices in Open Education. A graduate degree is required.

The Director is expected to be a strategic thinker with an entrepreneurial approach to create, envision and take calculated risks. S/he needs to be a collaborative and tactful leader to integrate OE programs with academic programs across the university. S/he needs to be an agile and adaptive manager to solve problems, make decisions, and inspire along the way. The Director is also expected to have financial and operational acumen to oversee a dedicated staff, manage similar relations, and ensure the sound management of the program's finances. The Director is expected to visit and oversee the OE programs in the regions, as needed.

This is a unique position that enables the successful candidate to contribute to the advancement of Armenia in a most meaningful way.

Job Responsibilities
